Anson Dorrance

"The single most successful coach in any sport in all of intercollegiate athletics," Dorrance is credited with having set the standard for women soccer worldwide when as the U.S. Women's National Coach his 1991 team won the first FIFA women's world championship with an extraordinary attacking style. For this feat Dorrance and the team were awarded the National Soccer Hall of Fame Medal of Honor in 2001. In his 29th year as Head Coach of the University of North Carolina Women's Soccer program, Dorrance's staggering 673-33-21 record and 20 national championships represents the best NCAA record for any coach in any Division I sport nationwide.
